Ills Counsel Gives Notice of a Motion for a New Trial.T. A. Dance Ordered Out of Town.

WINSTON, N. C., August 15 .- Special .-The jury in the Peter DeGraff murder case returned a verdict of gullty at 9 clock this morning. The prisoner was carried into the court-room ten minutes after the arrival of the jury. He looked pale, but, as usual, composed. The courtwas densely crowded. DeGraff, at the request of Judge Winston, stood up and raised his right arm. When the foreman said "guilty," the prisoner appeared much affected, but tried not to show it. at the request of his attorney, Every her of the jury said the prisoner was Oxford Notes.

OXFORD, N. C., August 15.—Special.— A. W. Graham, Esq., one of the counsel for Hon. A. H. A. Williams in his cond election case, has just returned Washington, where he has been on visit of consultation with other counsel in the case. He says Williams' success is well assured, as the testimony is so very strongly in his favor.

RICH INDIANS OF THE NORTHWEST. Cour d'Alenes Are Prosperous Farmers and Have Fat Bank Accounts. A complete census of the Indians on the Cocur d'Alene reservation, the western boundary of which is the Washington and Idaho State line, one and one-half miles east of Tekoa, has just been made by Sub-Agent J. J. Walsh. The returns show that there are 501 Indians on the reservation, of which 457 are Coeur d'Alenes and 44 are Spokanes. There are 88 school dren, ranging from nine to eightee years of age. There are 138 families, and these own 155 houses. Many families have a residence, called a "Sunday house," at the De Smet mission, in addition to their seldence on the farm. These "Sunday buses" are occupied by the family on landay, when all attend church at the soctions worthy of a permanent place year this tribe received nearly from the United States Governwhich was thrown open to settlement. money was hoarded away or spent permanent improvements on their and granaries; put up fences, tht farm implements, backs, carri-and harness and good heavy draught res. Many built new residences on ir farms and "Sunday houses" at the usion. No less than a dozen farm restdences and "Sunday houses" are now be-being built, and when the saw-mill at the mission is completed many granaries, buths and other buildings will be erected. barns and other buildings will be erected. It is expected this mill will be turning out lumber in a few weeks. This mill is being built by the Government with a portion of the purchase price of the land mentioned above. There is still due the Indiana $150,000, of which $30,000 goes for the erection and maintenance of the mill and the remaining $120,000 to be paid in fifteen annual payments of $3.000 each and the remaining $120,000 to be paid in afteen annual payments of $8,000 each. The Coeur d'Alenes are the wealthiest indian tribe in the Northwest. Many of the Indians have from $1,000 to $5,000 on deposit in the local merchants, or in Spokane. They all own good farms, most of which are fenced and being rapidly placed in cultivation. They have good houses, and many are setting at alce orchards, which will be bearing ruit in a few years. They are very careful with their money, buying but few things they do not need and paying cash for each article as it is purchased, thus allowing no chance for cheating in figuring up a bill. They understand making change, but cannot compute figures. Many of them, especially the children, can read and write, and the latter can be heard reading the signs aloud as they walk along the streets.

Last year these Indians had 4,500 acres in crop and sold $48,000 worth of farm produce and stock. This season they have 12,000 acres in crop, or nearly 100 acres for each family on the reservation, and the present prospects indicate an abundant yield. They have 12,000 acres under fence, having built 900 miles of beauty and the present prospects under acres under fence, having built 260 miles of barb-wire fence last year. They also erected last year sixty houses, worth

$30,000. Agent Walsh says these Indians are good farmers and are making money is agricultural pursuits. They take good care of their crops, stock and implements They have comfortable houses, good barns and sheds wherein they store their machinery when not in use, thus setting a good example before their white brothers, a majority of whom leave their machinery exposed to all kinds of weather good example before their when it is not in use. Their farms compare favorably with those of the whites and their grain yields equally as well

They are thrifty, industrious and sober. Drunkenness is severely punished by fine, imprisonment in the house (jail), or whipping with a heavy "quirt" upon the bare back. Chief Saltese lives at the mission, where he has a fine residence and court-house. He is the night ten stood for conviction and judge and jury in all cases, and prescribes inght ten stood for conviction and o undecided. The latter thought he signifies the evidence. One of them said day the prisoner's own evidence on estand alone would have convicted him. Decraft is twenty-three years old; small size, but handsome. He has not eaten the since the trial began. He cursed striday, and said the witnesses had the miles on him. After hearing the raile, he said he supposed the people days in the "skookum" house, or from the converted of the supposed the people days in the "skookum" house, or from relict, he said he supposed the people less. The offender gets from days in the "skookum" house, or from days in the "skookum" house, or from 50 to 150 lashes on the bare back. The blood they could take it. Sentence castigation is administered by an Indian castigation is defined by an Indian policeman, who lays on the "quirt" without mercy.

At the mission there are two owned and operated by full-blooded In-dians. They sell only groceries and lunch goods, and their patrons are the Indiana who attend church at the mission on Sundays. These store keepers and nearly sundays. These store keeper and all Indians buy their goods in Teken, where they also sell their grain.

Like all other Indians, the Coeur d'Alene prefer to raise stock instead of farming, but they are adapting themselves to the latter occupation, and Mr. farming, but they are adapting themselves to the latter occupation, and Mr. Walsh has great faith in making good farmers of them. They own 9,000 head of horses, some of which are quite valuable, and 1,500 head of cattle. They drive to town in hacks, carts or covered carriages, and have good teams; wagons are never used except when produce is brought to market. A large amount of new sod is being broken this summer, new sod is being broken this summer, and next season the acreage of grain will be nearly double that of the present will be nearly double that of the present season. A bright future seems to be be-fore this tribe, which is fast assuming the occupations, dress and habits of the whites.—Portland Morning Oregonian.

A RUN ON A GROCERY.

The Queer Outcome of a Groundless Panic at a Shingle Mill.

There was a "run" up at the little town of Hamilton, Wash., last month that ought to find its way into literature devoted to queer things. Now the ordina-ry "run" is generally confined to banks, ry "run" is generally confined to bunks, and is associated with a long line of frantic people and a bank president with pallid features, astitated nerves and a forced smile. There was no bank president in this case, no long line of horny-handed depositors and no locking of nanded depositors and no locking of doors and putting up an announcement of failure. Your average Hamiltonian, puts his money in a stocking or in an empty stove and cares not for banks. empty stove and cares not lot bases. The "run" in question was on a grocery store belonging to the Washington Red Ccdar Shingle Company. A "run" on a grocery store is about the fundest thirs—for the proprietor—that can hap-

The filer of the mill on the morning of the "run," to use a local phrase, "jump-ed his job," and wanted his cash before pay day, contrary to the rules and re gulations made and provided. The mill owners, making up their minds to dis-courage this habit of their men leaving them in the lurch, refused to pay the disconcolate filer until pay day. The filer thereupon filed an attachment on shin-gles of the company, and this caused the Without looking into the situa menced a "run" on the company's gro-cery store, with the object of taking out their wages and debts in lard, dried apples, tobacco, chow-chow, bacon and other necessaries of life.

the counter, jumped four feet in the air when the door opened and a half dozen when the door opened and a half dozen brawny, wild-eyed shingle weavers ap-peared. Bringing up the rear was a crowd of laborers, all clamoring for gro-ceries. Soon it became apparent that the clerk could not the up the packages fast enough, and he told the crowd to help themselves while he checked up the

When Manager Boardman returned in the evening from the woods, whether he had gone after a supply of legs, the cleri was lying exhausted across an empty pickle barrel, and the store had the appearance of the last act of a cyclone. When the clerk recovered he informed Boardman of the "run." and Boardman laughed long and loud. While he was surveying the work in came a drugen. surveying the wreck in came a drumm r for a Seattle grocery house and mildly inquired if anything was wanted. Boardman looked queerly at the drummer laughted and pointed to the empty shelves. The drummer knew his business and that night he carried the largest order of the month to Seattle. Before thorning Boardman had discharged all liens, and the mill was started up as usual.

Some persons are mean enough to say that the drummer put up a job on the shingle mill employes so that he could book an order; it may be so, and the mill employes are inclined to believe anythin; just now. If you go to Hamilton drop in and see Boardman and have him relate the story about the "run." Should you go over to the mill don't be surprised in go over to the mill don't be surprised if you see one of the weavers drop his bunch of shingles and go back of the boiler and kick himself. You will know that he was in the "run," and that he has a house full of dried apples, sickles, and canned fruit that he will never get rid of.-Puget Sound Lumberman.

A Georgia Trial. At Americus there was a negro, Joe Murray, being tried by the Justice Court, charged with the offense of perjury. The presiding justice was the only witness in the case. The justice, being sworn by the prosecuting attorney, remarked that the court being a witness he would disto give in his evidence, and after testi-fying and undergoing a searching exam-ination, the court remarked: "This court will now resolve itself into a court and resume business," and then proceeded to announce the judgment of the court, which was that the defendant be con-fined in Jail or give bond for his appearance at the next term of the Su-perior Court.-Atlanta Constitution.

The true cause for the un-settled state of affairs yesterday and to-day developed after 3 o'clock, when it was learned that the syndicate formed to take the collateral trust notes of the Northern Pacific to liquidate the floating debt had been disrupted, and on the application of the Fermers' Loan and Trust Company, receivers had been appointed for the property. This sudden turn of affairs explains the steady outpouring of all the Northern Pacific securities, North American, which company holds a cer-tain amount of Northern Pacific securities, was naturally affected, and sold at 3%, the lowest price ever touched. 1. THE REVERIES OF A BACHELOR; OR, A BOOK OF THE HEART.

By IK. MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.) This American classic has enjoyed a world wide circulation at its price of It is now offered for the first time at a nominal cost to our how humorous, philosophical, pathetic and charming LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME. By LORD MACAULAY. Beautifully Illustrated. Macaulay's "Lays" are instinct with the very soul of poetry, and are full of heroic action and energy. Like Scott's spirit-stirring ballads, they have a fine picturesque quality, with graphic breadth and great realistic power of expression. The English, no less than the Roman lays, have the breadth of the battle-field and the sounding notes of the charge to battle. The illustrations of How agreeable is "Ik. Marvel" in this gem of a book from his pen, how quaint,

3. A TILLYLOSS SCANDAL. By J. M. BARRIE:

this edition are unique, being executed in delicate outline.

A THEFICOS SIANDAL. By J. M. BARRIE:

A new work by J. M. Barrie, author of the Scottish classic, "The Little Minister," which has had a phenomenal sale, may be expected to whet the literary appetite of every intelligent reader of high-class fiction. In stories of humble Scottish peasant life, Mr. Barrie is on his own special ground. He knows the characteristics of the Scottish weaver and the peasant class as the sailor knows the sea. His shetches are full of a dry, quaint humor, with a strong realism and great force and directness of narrative power. Never, since Scott's day, has Lowiand Scottish fiction had such an interpreter or so entrancing a denictor of character, it was at the same time, with old situations and amusing depictor of character, lit up, at the same time, with old situations and amusing

4. THE HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

This masterpiece of Hawthorne's is full of the imaginative charm of romance, in felicity of touch, its author is unapproached by any writer since his own ay. The work is, perhaps, the purest piece of poetic prose in all the range of American literature.

CRANFORD. By MRS GASKRILL

"Cranford," in its charming miniature painting and sketches of character, re-calls the best of Jane Austen's novels. It is a delightful picture of old world social life in an English country village, descriptive of the feelings, habits, opin-ions, character and social conditions of the little community. The story is quiet earnestness and with fine literary aptitudes in the writer. It is beautifully 6. THE COMING RACE. By LORD LYTTON.

"The Coming Race," by Lord Lytton, is a clever and ingenious excursion into the realm of science, as the inventive mind of man may find it in the coming time. It presents a curious but fascinating picture of the human environments, as we may see it realized in the next century, when human needs will be served by every resource of electrical and mechanical contrivance—when "the coming race," for instance, will be enabled to exchange domestic heips for ingenious and mercury-footed automatons, and have at command every appliance adapted to the marvellously changed social and industrial condition of things. The work is the product of a fanciful but rarely gifted and versatile

7. DREAM LIFE. By IK MARVEL (Donald G. Mitchell.)

9. A BOOK OF GOLDEN DEEDS. By @. M. YONGE,

There is a profound mental study in this world-wide American classic. It contains a series of very vivid and picturesque studies of individual character and feeling. It has a fascinating power over the reader, while its graceful diction charms the literary appreciation and fills the mind with delightful, though cometimes pathetic pictures. FRANKENSTEIN; OR, THE MODERN PROMETHEUS, By Mrs. Shelley.

Like Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature," Mrs. Shelley's "Frankensfein" is a book every one should read. Its author has great imaginative powers and a weird but original genius. There are passages in "Frankenstein" that appal weird but original genius. There are passages in "Frankenstein" that appa the mind and make the flesh creep. Once read, the book can hardly ever be for-

This is just the book to put into the hand of youth, circulating a healthy morality, and true manly and womanly sentiments. Few books are better formed than this to develop and mould the tastes of the rising generation and encourage optimistic and patriotic ideas.

10. MOSSES FROM AN OLD MANSE. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Another delightful companion for idle hours is this collection of magazine papers, which Hawthorne entitled "Mosses from an Old Manse." Like all his works, it is distinguished for its simplicity and truth. Its high literary excellence commends it anew to public favor.

11. THE SCARLET LETTER. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE A romance of intense interest, exhibiting extraordinary power of mental analysis and graphic description. For an artistic exposition of Puritanism, as modified by New England colonial life, we have nothing like it in our literature. Like the best of Scott's novels, it is true at once to the local manners and scenic features of the age and place

12. ESSAYS OF ELIA. By CHARLES LAMB. These charming essays are full of a gay humor, interspersed with many sly hits, happy puns and bright scintillations of wit; carefully elaborated as they are, they are written with the utmost ease and grace, and composed in a spirit at once delicate and unobtrusive. Seeking his material in the common paths of life—even the humblest—Lamb gives an importance to everything and sheds a

13. VICAR OF WAKEFIELD. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. This beautifully illustrated edition of a famous English classic will increase its attractions for those who recognize the claim it has as essentially a "home book" for the whole reading world. Goldsmith has shed over the world the tenderest light of his genius, and the pastoral scenes in it are unrivalled, we had almost suid unapproached, by any other writer of fiction. As Sir Waiter Scott said of it, "We read the Vicar of Wakefield in youth and in age, and return series and again and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well." to it again and again, and bless the memory of an author who contrives so well to reconcile us to human nature." The book, throughout its fascinating pages, exhibits all the characteristic traits of "Poor Poli"—a genial fancy, and the most

14. TWICE TOLD TALES. (In Press.) By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNS. Hawtherne, the most distinctly American and by far the most popular of our writers, has given the world an undying book in "Twice-Told Talea," The stories were originally contributed to an Annual, published now over fifty years ago, and being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Talea." They have all being subsequently reprinted, are in reality "Twice-Told Tales." They have all the felicity of expression, as well as the subtlety of thought and insight, which are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." Each story breathes are the special charm of the author of "The Scarlet Letter." Each story breathes its own air of contemplation, and its effect is heightened by the felicities of style no less than by the imaginative genius of the author.

15. PAUL AND VIRGINIA. (In Press.) By BERNARDIN DE SAINT PIERRE. 5. PAUL AND VIRGINIA. (16 Press.) By BERNARDIN DE SAINT PIERRE.

This lightle story, by a classic French writer of the wholesome romantic school, is an immortal book, and has won a place for itself in the homes of almost every people who possess a literature and can appreciate the work of genius. It may, with some literary propriety, be termed an idealized Roblinson Crusce, and it has with some literary propriety, be termed an idealized Roblinson Crusce, and it has all the fascination of that renowned work. It is a book that is sure to go down the centuries, charming as well as edifying generations yet unborn.

16. STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM. (In Press.)

17. LAYS OF THE SCOTTISH CAVALIERS. (In Press.)

By WM. EDMONSTOUNE AYTOUN. These stirring ballads of Professor Aytoun, of Blackwood fame, have their only rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently rival in Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome." Their popularity is not lessently rival in the state of the stat ed by the fact that they are to be met with in every school reader and in the repertoire of most elocutionists and platform declaimers. Nor is popular appreciation affected by the fact that their author, in enshrining in patriotic and soul-stirring verse the heroic incidents of Scottish history, takes the "Royalist" side as against that of the "Covenanters."

18. LUCILE. (In Press.) By OWEN MEREDITH (Robert Lord Lytton.) "Lucile." by the second Lord Lytton, late Governor-General of India and British Ambassador to Paris, is a novel in werse, with rhymed couplets, cast somewhat in the mould of Mrs. Brewning's "Aurora Leigh." It is an enchanting what in the mould of Mrs. Brewning's "Aurora Leigh." It is an enchanting story, with a strong admixture of romantic thought, plus fertility of invensory, with a strong admixture of romantic thought, plus fertility of invensory.

19. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Ralph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER. 9. DREAMS. (In Press.) By (Ralph Iron) OLIVE SCHREINER.

Though unlike the "Story of an African Farm," "Dreams" has many of the characteristics which made Miss Schreiner's early work famous. The book is both interesting and suggestive, and, besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in interesting and suggestive, and besides its high meditative qualities, is rich in the discussion of those mental and moral problems which this clever writer delights to propound to herself and lay before the thoughtful reader. "Dreams" is manifestly the work of a rare and uncommon mind.

20. BLACK BEAUTY. (In Press.) By ANNA SEWELL.

"Black Beauty" is a horse, and the story Miss Sewell so feelingly tella us is its autobiography. The tale well deserves its great popularity, for it is wonderfully realistic, and makes a strong appeal to those who love dumb animals and possess the instinct of common humanity. It is a book to charm and impress all who have to do with horses, especially those who seek to suppress that most senseless of all vices, cruelty to animals.

TWICE-TOLD TALES. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.
